ALBION STONE GIFT

JEWELER AND SILVERSMITH ALBION STONE (AT LEFT) IS SHOWN WITH WINFIELD JENNEY AS MR. STONE PRESENTED THE MATTAPOISETT HISTORICAL SOCIETY WITH THE LARGE OIL PAINTING ON THE WALL BETWEEN THE TWO MEN. THE PAINTING WAS COMMISSIONED BY MR. STONE FROM NEW BEDFORD MARINE ARTIST FERNANDES ESPECIALLY FOR A GIFT TO THE MATTAPOISETT MUSEUM. THE PAINTING (DETAIL SHOWN ON THIS COVER) IS A DRAMATIC RENDITION OF THE ILL-FATED LAST VOYAGE OF THE BARK WANDERER WHICH ENDED ON THE ROCKS OF CUTTYHUNK IN 1924. WHALEBONE PLAQUES ON THE FRAME ARE ENGRAVED WITH THE NAME OF THE SHIP, WHEN SHE WAS BUILT IN MATTAPOISETT, WHEN WRECKED AND THE NAMES OF THE DONORS, MR. & MRS. ALBION STONE. MR. JENNEY ACCEPTED THE PAINTING ON BEHALF OF MRS. PRISCILLA HATHAWAY, PRESIDENT OF THE MATTAPOISETT HISTORICAL SOCIETY, AND EXPRESSED THE THANKS OF THAT ORGANIZATION AND THE TOWNSPEOPLE. THE PAINTING WILL BE DISPLAYED AT THE MUSEUM ON CHURCH STREET WITH OTHER VALUED RELICS OF THE TOWN'S SHIPBUILDING PAST.

Selectmen's Meeting

RECREATION BUDGET APPROVED

Selectmen unanimously approved a proposed program for recreation in Mattapoisett to encompass adults as well as youngsters in year round supervised activities. A $19,950 budget is proposed to cover this new program. Last year the budget was $10,932 and was exceeded by $3,500 which had to be transferred from the reserve fund making a total of $14,432.60

Frank O'Neil and Paul Levine, of the Recreation Committee, and Barry Haskell, Director of Recreation, made the budget presentation to the Board of Selectmen. Selectman R. William Blasdale expressed appreciation of the goals of the committee; he did urge some restraint be exercised in the expanding program. He suggested that some service organization of the town such as the Lions' Club might be asked to underwrite the cost of adult fun running and that the tennis program might be eliminated altogether. He felt that tennis is so popular now that adults who have learned to play using their own resources might prefer to have the courts available instead of being tied up every morning Monday through Friday during July and August. This view was opposed by both Selectmen William Hubbard and Chairman John DeCosta who said that they were in favor of accepting the entire program and were prepared to defend it on the town meeting floor. Blasdale said that, in that case, he would bow to the majority and make it a unanimous vote.

The budget contains $2170 for Little League baseball; $750. for Pee Wee baseball; $1500. for Pony League baseball; $840. for Little League softball; $400. for Pony League softball; $1,000. for Little League Boys' basketball; $390. for Pee Wee Basketball; $410 for Little League Girls' basketball; $335. for Pony League basketball; $150. for a Basketball Tournament; $870. for Little League Soccer; $200. HOME OF THE FUTURE IS NOW

People from this area who are suffering from shock after opening their fuel bills in one of the mildest winters experienced so far may be interested in visiting one of the homes of the future on Saturday. One of the first of its type, a passive solar home, has been built at Molly's Cove on Mattapoisett Neck by developer Louis T. Broderick. Open house will be from 12 to 4 this Saturday, January 26th.

The home is based on a solar passive system developed and tested extensively by M.I.T. scientist Timothy E. Johnson who designed the system for this home and the backup heating system installed by Merrill Cramer of Solar Yankee in the structure designed by Allen and Mahone, architects of Watertown.

The home is built at the very edge of the marsh at Molly's Cove overlooking Mattapoisett harbor from the entire southern exposure visible through double paned Pella windows. Specially designed venetian blinds with 1/4" slats act as sunlight deflectors to beam the radiant rays to a grey ceiling of conventional plasterboard. Resting on the attic side of the plaster ceiling are plastic bags containing salts developed by CMI Inc. of Andover. These bags of salt are the heat collectors changing from solid to liquid as temperature levels rise and fall either from the influence of the sunbeam heated ceiling or from electric heat coils laid on top of the salt bags. Over these coils is 12" of fiberglass bat with an R40 insulation rating. The home is designed with all active living area with a southern exposure. The north facing space is windowless and contains the kitchen, bath and service areas such as washer and dryer and closet space.

The home receives 60% of its heat from the sun. The total cost of the solar components and back-up electric resistance coil for the back-up and water heat is $6000 (about the same as a gas fired air convection system). The salt bags have received accelerated testing at MIT and are estimated on the basis of these tests to have a life exceeding 20 years. The system in operation will have an estimated annual electric bill of $200 (at present rates) realizing a saving to the homeowner of an estimated $1000 per year according to the contractor Merrill Cramer. The system is solid state with no moving parts other than the blind adjustment which requires attention about every 3 weeks as the sun's angle of incidence changes. As an added bonus the home is built with overhang to block the rays in the summer months and the salts in the ceiling continue to affect heat exchange absorbing heat by day and releasing it by night to become a cooling factor.

HEART CAMPAIGN VOLUNTEERS NEEDED

Mrs. Sally Souza, residential chairman of the 1980 American Heart Association campaign in Mattapoisett, has asked for volunteers to help in the February fund-raising effort.

Each year, nearly one million Americans die of heart disease and stroke and 200,000 of them die before retirement age.

"The contributions collected by volunteers support research, professional and public education, and community service programs,"

Marion Art Center

On February 8th and 9th, with the aid of the audience's imagination and some clever staging and costuming, the Marion Art Center stage will be transformed to a household in Bulgaria in 1885. This is the setting of "Arms and the Man" by George Bernard Shaw, to be presented in a staged reading by the Marion Art Center Players, directed by Bruce Cobbold. This is an anti-romantic comedy, Shaw's light-hearted spoof of romantic heroes, their wars, and their loves. The Petkoff family lives in a style that Shaw describes as "half rich Bulgarian, half cheap Viennese", and much fun is had at the expense of the family's pretentions to society. A 1930's Broadway musical, "The Chocolate Soldier", was based on the play.

The cast includes Sam Cuddebach, Perdita Finn, Natalie Webster, Ted Babbitt, Nancy Manley; and Corresponding Secretary, Pat Bryan. New Trustees are Alex Grassonovitch of South Dartmouth, Senator Robert M. Hunt of New Bedford, Mrs. Pat Silva of South Dartmouth, and Beth Sanford of Swansea. Returning to the Board this year is Mrs. Nancy Manley.

It was announced at the meeting that the church building in Russells Mills, that has housed the Children's Museum for the past 26 years, is in the process of being sold to Mrs. Georgia Ann Codin of Wakefield, Mass., who has plans to make it a doll museum. It was also noted at the meeting that the resignation of staff member, Mrs. Elaine Spana had been received in early December. Elaine had been hired as assistant director in 1977. Statistically, the Museum showed an increase in the number of school children attending lessons there, an increase in membership, an increase in the numbers attending public programs and a balanced budget. The total number visiting the Children's Museum and the Museum Outdoors in 1979, in public functions and programs, school groups, scout groups, etc. was 13, 183.

This year, 1979, the Museum received two grants; one from the Polaroid Foundation and one from the Acushnet Foundation. A new collection of mounted birds and new mineral specimen collection were donated to the Museum by the Boston Children's Museum.

New programs and projects for 1979 included: A Girl Scout Badge program, the Museum's new magazine, "Windows to New Worlds", and "in the process" renovations at the Museum Outdoors to help consolidation.

We wish to thank all supporters of the Children's Museum and wish them a Happy New Year.

Students Help CARE

TO SHOW THEY "CARED"

A student math activity in Betty Trow's 6th grade class at Old Hammondtown School reaped an unexpected reward recently resulting in a $100.00 student contribution to CARE, Inc.

The activity, which was to create pictures by using coordinate numbers on graph paper, blossomed into a fund-raising project when enthusiastic students came up with the idea of combining their individual productions into booklet form. The results were dot-to-dot booklets and coloring booklets which were produced on masters, run off and collated - all by students. Student groups then brought these booklets to the various classrooms in school and exchanged them for a contribution to CARE. "It was heartwarming to see the enthusiasm and concern of these youngsters," remarked Mrs. Trow. "And our out-of-pocket expenses were virtually non-existent as the paper to make these booklets was donated to the class. Who says kids today have no heart?"

Students were greeted with an additional unexpected bonus for their efforts upon return from Christmas vacation when Mrs. Trow read them a letter from CARE's regional office. CARE officials indicated that they plan to share the idea of this project with CARE World Headquarters in New York for possible use by mailings to other schools.

at both young people and adults, the film is one of the best vehicles released by the American Lung Association on our environmental concerns. SEMLA would like to make the film available on a loan basis to schools, industries and community clubs and organizations in the five counties of Barnstable, Plymouth, Bristol, Dukes and Nantucket.

The Christmas Seal people owe thanks to Mr. Charles Schulz, 1979 National Christmas Seal Chairman, who designed and produced the film, and the U.S. Environmental Control Agency which supported the entire production with a generous public service grant.

In the film, Charlie Brown's team loses its 901st straight game when Lucy misses a flyball because the pollution is so thick she can't see.

A distressed Charlie Brown consults Lucy at her "psychiatric help" booth (her fees have kept pace with inflation and are now 25¢). On her advice, he goes into the classroom with American Lung Association materials and urges everyone to clean up the air. Pigpen also spreads the word by carrying a sign "Fight Pollution".

Of particular interest to the Christmas Seal Chairman is creating a smoke-free generation. "Most youngsters see cigarette smoking as a form of air pollution", says Schulz. "If we encourage kids to protect the lungs against all kinds of air pollution, including cigarette smoke, we'll have a nation of winners."

Anyone wishing information on the film and teaching aids that accompany it, other educational films or audio-visual aids and literature on air pollution and lung diseases, may write SEMLA, P. O. Box 43, West Grove Street, Middleboro, MA. 02346, or call 947-7204.

SHIPBUILDERS OF MATTAPOISETT

By Charles S. Mendell, Jr.

Of these early shipyards not much is known. Yet one anecdote has come down the years, showing in what esteem the skill of these ship-carpenters was held. One day a barefoot man walked down the sandy cart-track to one of the shipyards and asked the master carpenter for a job. The latter demanded some proof of the applicant's skill, whereupon the newcomer seized a broadaxe, balanced himself on a huge stick of timber with his toes spread wide apart and curled over the edge, raised the axe over his head, and brought it down again and again, striking the spaces between his toes in swift succession. He got the job.

This may or may not be an exaggeration. The skill of these ship-carpenters was something for us to marvel at. With a few crude tools --- a broad axe, an adz, a chisel, a saw, and a hammer --- they could fashion rough pieces of timber into a fleet sailing vessel. And "many a man among them could with the broad axe hew so closely to the line, and so smoothly, that the plane could hardly improve the surface."

The War of 1812, with H.B. Brig Nimrod in Buzzards Bay, put a temporary crimp in activities; but after 1815 we come to the 45 years when the American merchant fleet became the largest in the world, and when New Bedford became the center of the whaling industry, one of the great businesses of the world. As the years rolled on, Mattapoisett became the premier supplier of ships for that industry.

Many of the vessels in the whaling fleet were merchant ships rebuilt and altered into whalers; but as the years went by, agents realized the wisdom of purchasing sturdy vessels built specifically for whaling by men experienced and skilled in the craft. These shipyards of high reputation for their whaleships lay almost wholly in Mattapoisett and within the confines of Old Dartmouth. Of the best known of these, one was in Dartmouth, three in New Bedford, two in Fairhaven, and five in Mattapoisett. And yet, during these years the population of Mattapoisett was much smaller than any of the rest. She was, in truth, a village of shipbuilders.

Although a great deal is known of the 200-odd ships built in Mattapoisett during these years, of their builders and the yards, and of the Nantucket and New Bedford firms for which they sailed, it is manifestly impossible in a short paper to speak of even a fraction of them; so I will give merely a resume of the shipyards and of those whalers which became well-known to New Bedford people.

To the west of the present town wharves and extending around by the foot of Pearl Street lay the yard of Gideon Barstow, Sr., which later passed to his son Gideon Jr. and his grandson Wilson. Wilson Barstow's yard was one of the most noted of its time. He was no business man -- he failed three times -- but he hired the finest master builders available, and for over a quarter of a century, down his ways slid three, four, and five ships a year, and the majority sailed out of the harbor and around the Neck to join the New Bedford and Fairhaven whaling fleets. From his yard, also, came the largest vessel ever built in Mattapoisett; the Ship George Lee, of 650 tons, built in 1854 for the shipping firm of Cabot & Lee & Co. of Boston.

We are now featuring a beautiful new line of invitations and announcements

On the present Town Wharf property was the shipyard of Ebeneezer Cannon Jr., established in 1792 and continuing until the formation of the Mattapoisett Wharf Co. in 1834. The vessels built here were mostly small merchantmen, one of the first of which was advertised in "The Medley", New Bedford's first newspaper.

The present Shipyard Park was the site of the famous Holmes shipyard, started in 1812 by Josiah Holmes Sr. and continuing until the Bark Wanderer, built where the bandstand sits now, slid down the ways in 1878, the last vessel ever launched in Mattapoisett. Josiah Holmes first formed a partnership with Benjamin Barstow; but in 1826 they agreed to disagree, and after that Holmes ran the yard by himself and then with his sons, Josiah Jr. and Jonathan. After the old man's death, the firm of Josiah Holmes Jr. and Brother was well known indeed in New Bedford, and particularly was it popular with the Quaker whaling agents, for Josiah Jr. was of this faith. After the Civil War had ruined the industry, he moved to New Bedford and started the Holmes Coal Co., later carried on by his son and grandson.

Where the Anchorage* is now was the yard of William Moore, established in 1800 and perhaps the first to build large ships for New York. Moore failed in 1818, and the yard was purchased by Uncle Leonard Hammond, as he was called, a very versatile business man, and one of the shrewdest of shrewd Yankees. He ran the Plymouth County House, a tavern which sat between the present Anchorage and the street, and which burned on a bitterly cold February night in 1855 when New Bedford sent a fire engine down that wouldn't pump until its insides were heated by hot bricks. (Also, it is related, many of the fire fighters were in a like fix until rum was used for the same purpose.)

*"Now" being 1934, the Anchorage was located at the southeast side of Shipyard Park.
